Virya (2004), terme sanskrit signifiant "énergie, vigueur, force", juxtapose différents matériaux hétérogènes: sections très hachées rythmiquement dégringolant rapidement de l'aigu au registre médium; blocs rapides vibrant autour d'un nombre réduit de sons, évoluant dans un contexte résolument micro-tonal. Plages étales constituées de sons aigus agencés en superpositions de vitesses différentes, légèrement déviés par des micro-intervalles et des glissandi, générant ainsi battements, vibrations, voire sons "fantômes".
